Who is a Stakeholder?

Stakeholders are those who make and implement decisions, those who are affected by the decisions made, and those who participate in the implementation process.
Types of stakeholders

- Landowners
- Citizens
- Citizen Groups
- Local Elected Representatives
- Local Governmental entities (cities, counties, GCDs, SWCDs)
- Academia
- Non-Government Organizations
- Business & Industry (Poultry, Oil & Gas, Agriculture, Timber)
- Special Interest Groups
Why we need stakeholders

- Developing an effective watershed protection plan (WPP) depends on stakeholder involvement and input
- Appropriate representation is imperative
- Stakeholders know the watershed and what management practices will work
- Stakeholders will decide what is included in their WPP

• Stakeholder Input Is Critical!
STEERING COMMITTEE SELECTION

- The initial solicitation of Steering Committee members representing all types of stakeholders (geographic and topical) within the watershed included:
  - Meeting with various stakeholder interest groups;
  - Personal communication;
  - Newspaper and television; and
  - Self-nomination or requests by the various stakeholder groups or individuals through the stakeholder survey.
